THE JUDITH MURDERER

History of His Crime in Wyoming Which He Was Unpunished. James Wilber, the perpetrator of the sextuple murder, the last being his own self destruction, is not without a history, espec ially in crime. A gentleman familiar with the facts related the following to an INDE

areer in Wyoming:

James Wilber, alias Harry Patterson. the latter being the name by which he was known in Wyoming, was arrested one time for the killing of "Tin Hat," a gambler Mullally of this city, who has as large an interest as any of them, was not consulted when this plan was formulated, and yesterday fired a shot into their camp by telegraphing his positive refusal to enter into any such arrangement. This, no doubt, will prove very unwelcome news to Messrs. Schwab and Fine, but Mullally has got his irish up and says he doesn't propose to accept any arrangement in which he was not consulted. What the result of this move on his part may be cannot be told just yet, but the effect upon the stock was very plain yesterday when it broke down from 30 cents to 22% cents sellers, and closed very weak at that."

Sam Schwab of course saw the article and smiled a broad smile as he perused it.
